Schedule of Matters Reserved for the Board

Overview

The thinking behind having a Schedule of Reserved Matters for the board is that, without such a schedule, many decisions that the board would expect to take can fall within the delegated authority of an executive, committee or joint committee. The existence of a schedule of matters reserved for the board provides an internal safety net to ensure that these decisions have to be referred to the board. It also simplifies the process of delegation and makes it easier for the board to give executives and committees the powers they need to perform their functions. Broader powers can be delegated if they are made subject to the exceptions set out in the schedule. A schedule also allows corporate-wide changes to be made without having to alter the terms of delegation for each individual or committee.

The main disadvantage of this approach to delegation is that those who exercise delegated powers are not always as knowledgeable as they should be about the contents of the schedule, a particular danger when the schedule has been amended – so it's important to ensure that all boards in the Consortium have similar schedules and that the Consortium Agreement does not conflict with them.

No matter how effective a board may be it is not possible for members to have hands on involvement in every area of the Internal Drainage Board's business. An effective board controls the business but delegates day to day responsibility to the executive management. That said there are a number of matters which are required to be, or, in the interests of the organisation, should only be decided by the board as a whole. It is therefore incumbent upon the board to make it clear what these 'Reserved Matters' are.

Urgent Matters

In drawing up a Schedule of Matters Reserved for the Board it is important to establish procedures for dealing with issues which have to be dealt with urgently, often between regular board meetings. Clearly the Chief Executive and his/her management team also need to have sufficient delegated authority to run the day to day business but the extent of this may not always be understood. The terms of reference for the Chief Executive's Management Committee and the Board's Scheme of Delegation clarifies these issues.

Schedule of Matters Reserved for the Board

In all cases such procedures should balance the need for urgency with the overriding principle that each and every board member ought to be given as much information as possible, the time to consider it properly and an opportunity to discuss matters prior to the commitment of the organisation.

Delegated authority should therefore be kept to a minimum. If, in practical terms, this is not possible and widespread delegation is needed, then something more fundamental is wrong – either there are too many board members or the board does not meet regularly enough.
